To Whom It May Concern,

Milstead Farm Group is a cotton ginning operation in Central Alabama. The gin was built in 1998, by a group of farmers, who wanted to take advantage of the latest ginning technology in order to create more value for their crops. We make it a priority to observe our operation and acknowledge opportunities to create more value with available technologies in the industry.

During the 2018 ginning season, we saw the need of better moisture restoration and management. We contacted Bajaj Coneagle LLC in Millbrook AL regarding our need. They, in turn, got us in touch with the people at SierraTek. We were able to meet with representatives from SierraTek and discuss our needs regarding moisture restoration. Because of their knowledge of the ginning industry and their desire to establish a long term relationship, Milstead Farm Group partnered SierraTek to achieve the goal of implementing a moisture restoration and management system. The system was delivered on time, installed and was put into service. We were immediately impressed with the simplicity of the equipment and the depth of the control of the system. SierraTek proved time after time that service behind their product was their priority.

We look forward to partnering with SierraTek in the future on other projects at Milstead Farm Group.

Sincerely,

Shep Morris, President
Milstead Farm Group, Inc.
